

Petaluma Dairy Beltway

The heart of Sonoma County's agricultural past and future, known as the Petaluma Dairy Beltway, meanders its way to the Sonoma Coast. Along the way a range of agricultural operations are represented, from organic dairy, to artisan butter, to gourmet cheeses, locally grown beef, rabbit, goat, and lamb. The entire production, on over 10,000 acres, supports more than 250 jobs with sales locally and regionally.

Ranchers and farmers from the Roblar, Valley Ford, and Two Rock areas and this important economic region support Mayor Pamela Torliatt for Second District Supervisor. Her agricultural roots go back to growing up on Pepper Lane and participating in Live Oak 4-H. These same agricultural values persist today as Pam and her boyfriend raise grass fed beef right in the middle of the Petaluma Dairy Beltway, giving Pam a real world understanding of the financial and other challenges facing agriculture.

As the Mayor of the City of Petaluma and Director for the Bay Area Air Quality Management District, Pam secured $1.4 million for the Sonoma County agricultural community to lessen the hardship from retrofitting farming machinery and equipment to meet new air quality standards.

As our County Supervisor, Pam will protect our agricultural lands and open space by promoting responsible development. She will put her experience to work to protect our working farms and ranches, encourage sustainable agriculture, protect our natural resources, and remove excessive burdens to our local producers and farmers.

We encourage you to vote Mayor Pamela Torliatt for Second District Supervisor to help preserve the agricultural tradition of the Petaluma Dairy Beltway.

Sincerely,
